BE ADVISED: All ceiling fans will emit some audible noise; and said noise will be most apparent at night or during period of time when there is less ambient noise to interfere with said noise, and especially on low speed settings, slight electrical fluctuations will cause said noise. This noise is referred to as ripple control, which is a method used by electricity companies to control utilities by using a superimposed frequency on your standard 50Hz AC power supply. Typically, the ripple control is used to control and manage peak power loads on electrical distribution networks. The noise is the result of the electricity supplier alternating the direct current entering your house in order to check if, for example, street lights are operational. This may cause humming noises in the ceiling fan and is not covered under warranty. A light fitting will often accentuate noises and vibrations, which can be traced to loose glass fittings or other components; this is not covered under warranty.
